

Thomas County Government

Public Access and Service Delivery Restrictions

Revised effective – 13 April 2020

Thomas County Government provides services vital to the health, safety and economic well-being of our community. We are instruments for the local delivery of specific state services and we follow the lead of the State of Georgia in the manner in which those services are provided. County employees are following all health and safety measures as recommended by responsible health professionals.

Georgia Supreme Court Chief Justice Howard Melton has ordered that county Courthouses remain open, though specific functions may be postponed or cancelled. The Thomas County Judicial Center will remain open in the lobby areas only. Thomas County Historic Courthouse and all County agencies, offices and departments are closed to the public.
